Freshman Composition

By H. B. LATHROP

University of Wisconsin

The purpose of this book, which is designed for first-year college courses, is not only to give practical directions, but to bring those directions into relation; to develop an ordered body of guiding principles. In this respect it departs from the tendency of recent works, which avowedly follow "the rule of the thumb." For the sake of clearness the subject is treated as an organized whole and while the treatment is not philosophically complete it goes to the bottom of the topics it does consider.

Freshman composition is a development; the result of years of first-hand experience. It includes nothing that has not grown out of some actual, constantly recurring situation.

“TYPEE”

By HERMAN MELVILLE

Edited by S. A. Leonard, Teachers College, N.Y.

The rival of “Treasure Island”—Melville’s yarn of the South Seas is full of the glamor of adventure. Days of the fear of sudden death, days of drowsy, warm forgetfulness; dark waters curling over glistening sands, amber sunlight through the palms, caressing the face of tough old chief, or startling the shadows from the soft eyes of Fayaway. At this Melville centenary there will be thousands of new readers of his best story, “Typee.” Probable price, 84 cents.

Modern American Prose Selections

Edited by BYRON J. REES, Professor of English, Williams College.

Selections from twenty authors, touching national questions, literary criticism, educational problems, and other topics. $1.00.

An Introduction to Social Ethics

JOHN M. MECKLIN, Professor of Philosophy, University of Pittsburgh.

A study of the social conscience in a democracy; an analysis of the nature and function of public sentiment, and an examination of the effect of this opinion upon the family, the church, and private property. $3.00.

Modern British Poetry

An anthology collected by LOUIS UNTERMEYER, forming a companion volume to “Modern American Poetry.” Poems from eighty authors. $1.00.

HARCOURT, BRACE AND HOWE

ONE WEST FORTY-SEVENTH ST.
NEW YORK

OPEN THE DOOR

CATHERINE CARSWELL

A very remarkable English novel which has just won the two hundred fifty pounds Melrose Prize Novel Competition in London. $2.00.

A GUIDE TO RUSSIAN LITERATURE. MOISSAYE J. OLGIN, author of "The Soul of the Russian Revolution."

Dr. Olgin, widely known both in Russia and in America, interprets the genius of seventy great Russian writers between 1825 and 1917. $3.50.

MARGARET FULLER

KATHERINE ANTHONY

A psychological biography, presenting a searching study of the inner forces that made Margaret Fuller (Countess d'Ossoli) the First American Feminist, and professional woman of letters. $1.75.

MUSICAL PORTRAITS

PAUL ROSENFELD

Interpretations of twenty modern composers including the greatest of the successors of Wagner, together with a study of Wagner himself. $2.25.

A SHORT HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN LABOR MOVEMENT

MARY BEARD

An account of the origin, progress, and ideals of American organized labor, from its beginning, about 1780, to the present day. $1.50.

THE NEW GERMANY

GEORGE YOUNG

Mr. Young, formerly in the British diplomatic service, discusses the new spiritual and social forces at work in Germany, and estimates their value in the matter of world-peace. $2.25.

A SHORT HISTORY OF THE GREAT WAR. A. F. POLLARD, Professor of History in the University of London.

This book, with many special maps, is the first brief and reliable outline history of the war. $3.25.

NEW ITALY

HELEN ZIMMERN and ANTONIO AGRESTI

A survey of contemporary Italy and its problems, foreign and domestic, including political parties, colonial policy, economic progress, and reaction to Germany's peaceful conquest of Italian industry. $2.00.

EASY LESSONS IN EINSTEIN

EDWIN E. SLOSSON

A short simple and authoritative exposition of this famous theory. Includes Einstein's own explanation of his discovery. $1.35.

AN OUTLINE OF PSYCHO-ANALYSIS

BARBARA LOW

A brief, interesting account of the Freudian theory, with definite technique of application. $1.60.

Teaching the English They'll Use

Employers and the public say that our schools do not teach English for practical use, or rather that the teaching does not have apparent practical results. They say that office clerks and typists, right out of school, pollute the very buckets in the well of English.

Business English is, of course, not a distinct language apart from other good English, but certainly the business man gives to English a direction and an emphasis that require special presentation. The business man wants his typist to know, for instance, the difference between accept and except, between principle and principal, between affect and effect. He is not so particular that she shall be able to point out the participial modifiers in a page of Carlyle's "Essay on Burns." If such idiomatic language as held in abeyance and dissolved partnership is as Greek to her, she retards his business while she studies "Greek."

The business man may fairly demand of his assistants: a knowledge of how business is done; an understanding of English as used in business; the ability to speak and to write the English of business.

There has been no book for high schools that presented practical English completely and carefully in this way. Now there is!

The Business Man's English

By WALLACE E. BARTHOLOMEW, Specialist in Commercial Education
New York State Department

and

FLOYD HURLBUT, Superintendent of Schools, Bay Shore, New York

1. Tells how business is transacted.
2. Teaches oral English, pronunciation, use of the telephone, oral reports, etc.
3. Teaches the letter thoroughly.
4. Teaches the use of words and anticipates all the mistakes young office people seem determined to make.
5. Teaches the elements of advertising and salesmanship.

This is a book in progressive, practical English for the modern school.
